Paddy Dixon Found Dead

The town was given a good taste of excitement Tuesday when word was brought to town that Paddy Dixon a native logger was found dead near the logging camp early that morning.

The last known of Paddy Dixon was when he left Wrangell for the camp in Chichagof Pass run by himself and partner Geo. Bell. He went out alone there is no way of knowing just when he died, but it is believed that he has been dead at least since Sunday. The body was found on the beach, he had his boots off and his boat was gone.

The body was brought to town and the authorities notified and upon examination wounds were found on the head just in front of the ears on each side of the face that is believed by many to be the wounds of a high power gun which they believe evidence of willful murder.

A coroners inquest was called and Dr. Shurick made an examination of the body and used a probe on the wounds but was unable to shove it through and for that reason he is of the opinion that the wounds were caused by something other than a bullet, and the jury returned a verdict "Died an unnatural death, cause unknown."

While Dr. Shurick made a second examination he could find no traces of a bullet, but many people are still of the opinion that it was murder, but no reason is known for murder.

Wrangell Is Right There

Wrangell is sure putting up a busy metropolitan air this last week as we hear the dray wagons and automobiles.

Ensley's Dray Line has about all the business they can handle and The City Store Auto is busy handling their freight and delivery over our fine new streets.

Wrangell sure looks good.

The Moose Lodge Entertain Again

Last Friday evening Wrangell Lodge No. 866, L. O. O. M., had their second whist party of the season. The first prizes were awarded Mr. and Mrs. McGowan; booby prizes Leo McCormack and Mrs. J. H. Palmer. After the whist game there was a musical program rendered which was greatly appreciated by all. At midnight lunch was served after which a Virginia Reel was danced, which was followed by several amusing games. Everybody had a good time and they look forward to the next card party of the series which will be held on Dec. 12th.

No Case Against Aase

Ole Aase one of the best known characters about Wrangell came in from Santa Ana last Friday and Saturday much to the amusement of every man who knows him was arrested for Assault upon a public highway on the person of Mrs. Wm. Schnabel.

Marshal Schnabel made the arrest in the Central Saloon and before Aase knew what was the trouble he was being hustled off to jail. The friends of Aase, knowing that there was some mistake somewhere, were quick to put up his bail and he was let out until his trial Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

The trial was short and as soon as all the witnesses had testified the jury were given the room and in about ten minutes returned a verdict of not guilty.

Mr. Aase is a well known man here and has a good character and has never before been under arrest and would never insult a woman intentionally or any other person as any one who knows him would testify.

Thurston went out for a boat ride last Saturday and while out in the bay the engine gave out and Thurston drifted out to Vank's Island where he spent the night and was picked up next morning by a searching party. The night was rather cold and as he had no fire he suffered considerable before he was rescued.

I am in receipt of a decision from the Comptroller of the Treasury in which he holds that the expense of enforcing any laws passed by the Alaska Legislature. Should any one desire to enforce any of these laws or obtain any services from your office in this connection, he will first be required to deposit all fees and expenses, the same as a plaintiff in a civil action. Prisoners who have been sentenced for a violation of the Territorial laws are not United States prisoners; and you are directed not to receive any such prisoners unless the Territory should deposit the cost of subsistence in advance.

Respectfully,
H. L. Falkner,
United States Marshal.

The Foolishness of Men

A Sharon, Pa., man recently held in a poker game. Now he is in a hospital and his condition is reported to be serious. If he had merely possessed one more wit than he was entitled to, he would doubtless still be up and around, with a fair reason to believe that his lawyer would be able to adjust the matter for him. Why will men risk their all by violating the rules of poker?

The superior construction of the MONARCH is such that waste of heat is impossible. Every particle of fuel is consumed and the heat held captive until it does its full duty. The same splendid economical service which the MONARCH gives when new is retains through years and years of hard continuous use. That's why it's called the "Stay Satisfactory Range." The fuel economy of the MONARCH is economies in time and labor. Drudgery is replaced by pleasure, the housewives duties are rendered lighter—her results are better. A MONARCH will pay for itself over and over again in the saving of fuel and, as interest on the investment, will provide real cooking comfort for many, many years.

We recommend the MONARCH as we have every confidence that it will make good all our claims as it has always done.

Home

When the chill blasts of winter shriek across the frozen earth and the pitiless snow hides from our sight the last vestige of what remains of summer, when the frozen streams and leafless trees look barren and desolate, and even the beasts of the field cling closer to their protecting shelter, how dreadful is the thought that perhaps some poor homeless wanderer is out in the storm. It is then that we turn to our own fireside and smile at the dear faces of our loved ones. It is then that we fully appreciate that priceless gift that God has given us—home, where we can find rest and comfort unmolested; home, where we can breathe our sorrow to sympathetic ears; home, where our joys are the happiness of others; home, where true hearts beat in unison with one another and happiness is found in its fullest meaning. So should we each strive in our own way to make our homelife better and brighter. A kindly word at parting, a pleasant smile in greeting, an approving glance, an encouraging word, or a helping hand, each in their place, and we never know their power for good. So let us, to whom God has given these blessings, make them what they should be, a paradise on earth; where weary hearts can find rest and peace after the toil of the day is over.

How many of our readers think as often as they should of their mother? Other faces may fade away and be forgotten, but her's will shine on forever. When in the fitful pauses of life our feet wander back to the old homestead and crossing the well worn threshold, stand once more in the room so hallowed by her presence, how the feelings of childish innocence and independence overcome us, and we kneel down in the molten sunshine streaming through the window just where years ago we knelt by our mother's knee lisping, "Our Father." How many times when the tempest hurried us on, has the memory of those sacred hours, the mother's words, her faith and prayers saved us from plunging into the deep abyss of sin. Years have filled great drifts between her and us, but they have not hidden from our sight the memory of her pure unselfish love. Dear old-fashioned mother.

The Silver Fox Industry.

A. B. Shubert, Inc. — Chicago, U. S. A., the largest House in the World, dealing exclusively in American Raw Furs, in a letter to the editor says in part as follows:

More than one thousand five hundred silver black foxes are in captivity at the present time throughout United States and Canada. Thousands of dollars are expended annually in the scientific breeding of these valuable little animals, and the industry so far at least has proven a success. Few people realize, however, that far from being modern in its origin, the raising of animals for their fur is, in point of fact, centuries old. However, the art of breeding silver black foxes successfully is a product of the latter part of the nineteenth century, and even today the industry is still in the process of perfection.

Canada is truthfully said to have the edge on this country when it comes to silver black fox raising. It was a Canadian, Charles Dalton of Prince Edward Island, who first successfully bred these almost priceless foxes, and Canada is still far ahead of any other country in this unique enterprise. About twenty-five years ago, Dalton, who was a farmer, happened by chance upon a litter of black fox, and conceived the idea that with the enormous price these furs were bringing in European Markets, there ought to be a fortune in it for the one who could raise them practically. For a number of years he conducted a black fox ranch in secret, and the animals were bred only for their fur, and since the choice Fine Dark skins brought anywhere from five hundred to three thousand dollars apiece, he realized considerable on his undertaking, as he secured only the finest skins by careful feeding and watching. A few years ago, it occurred to Dalton that there was more money in raising these animals for sale as breeders, as others were beginning to try their hand in the business, and so for the last six years he has sold nothing but live black foxes.

The top notch price now on record for a pair of pure silver black foxes is $40,000, and since the price of all other furs has increased many times their value in the last few years, it is thought that in a short time their value in the last few years, it is thought that in a short time, silver black foxes will be worth their weight in gold. The little island where Dalton began his operations is now studded with black fox ranches, and while the land there is well adapted for fox breeding, they can be raised in other districts as well. The United States Department of Agriculture has shown that almost all the Pacific States as well as the entire eastern and northern part of this country is suitable for fox farming.

The gradual extermination of wild animals throughout the Continent has brought on an alarming scarcity in raw furs within the last few years, and Mr. A. B. Shubert of Chicago—President of A. B. Shubert, Inc., the largest house in the world dealing exclusively in American Raw Furs, has shown that if attention is not given to the domestic culture of certain animals, the country will soon lose one of its greatest industries. Among other things he has encouraged and fostered the silver fox farming and thousands of inquiries are being received from enthusiasts all over North America. Last year Shubert's collection of one hundred and twenty three black and silver Fox brought the highest prices ever known in European Markets. The nobility of Europe vied with each other in bidding at the sales to obtain these beautiful furs.

Although there are thousands of dollars in it for the successful raiser of black and silver foxes, a very small number of those who attempt it succeed to a practical extent. The reason for this lies in the fact that whoever engages in Fox farming must be fitted for the business with a very even temperament and an abundance of patience. The habits of the animals must be studied carefully. They must be presented with an environment as close to nature as possible, and they must be severely alone at breeding time. They are usually fed twice a day, and receive a quarter of a pound of meat each day, but wild food, such as pigeons, chickens, mice and rabbits, is also fed to them to keep up their wild instincts, and make them feel more at home in their surroundings. They are kept in wire netting inclosures and given plenty of opportunity to burrow, a concrete wall extending in the ground for some distance to prevent their escape. If a mother is disturbed in anyway at breeding time, she will oftentimes kill the entire litter of young ones, for fear of their safety, and many times, the mere curiosity to know how many young were in a new litter, has caused the mother to kill them all. She does this not for spite but for love of her babies. Black fox mate in February and March, and the litters come in April and May, or to be exact, fifty-four days later. Overfeeding has also spelled defeat for many a fox-raiser, and it is even better to underfeed than to overfeed these animals. Overfeeding is dangerous as it causes intestinal trouble, and fat animals moreover, will not breed.

Each year the supply of wild foxes becomes more scarce, while the ranch-bred fox is on the increase. The Indians of Yukon Territory captured fifty-six live

NEWS GATHERED FROM NORTHERN EMPIRE

Miss Lenora Hyde, of Fairbanks, has been installed as territorial clerk in the office of the surveyor general at Juneau.

Seven days eight hours, the record for fast time from Nome to Seattle, was made by the steamer Victoria on her last trip.

Beach miners at Nome think the recent storm may have washed up a fresh supply of gold from the sea in the great piles of sand.

J. C. Evans, local manager of the Carstens Packing Co., at Seward, attempted suicide at that place on Oct. 10 by taking a dose of carbolic acid.

Late arrivals from Dawson say good dogs there readily bring from $75 to $100 and that the supply is inadequate to the demand.

It is announced that the treasury of the Territory of Alaska contains 21,000 in cash. This may seem small, but it should be remembered that Alaska has no debts.

The schooner Bender Brothers took out gold to the extent of $6,000 from the Kuskokwim when she returned to Seattle from a season in the North.

When the Northwestern left Nome on her last trip there was but one vessel in the roadstead at that place—the revenue cutter Bear.

The Portland Gold Mining company, operating on Porcupine creek, tributary to the Klakeena, has had several rich cleanups this year, the last one netting nearly $14,000.

George Max Esterly, in charge of a big hydraulic plant on Chittitu creek, brought in the seasons clean up to Cordova last month, and it is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $100,000. Between 40 and 50 men have been working on the two plants located on Chittitu and Rex creeks, tributaries of the Nizina river. Mr. Esterly states that if the season had not been short, he was working in such good ground that it would have been easy to have taken out $200,000. He was not able to do any sluicing until June 16, and then on August 28 a freeze came on that deprived him of water.

Promises have been made by the Juneau steamship company that a fast successor to the steamship Georgia will be built if the government renews its mail contract with the company for the carrying of mails.

A. Adkins, well-known in this region, of which he is a pioneer returned on the Spokane yesterday from Hartley bay where he had been for several months taking care of a sawmill property for the Eardley interests. He expects to be in town the greater part of the winter and says that Ketchikan looks very good to him.

F. A. Jorgensen, the well-known Tanana miner who distinguished himself several years ago by surviving a broken neck sustained while working in the Tenderfoot district, has been in San Francisco, where he was relieved of one of the bones of his right leg. Undaunted by his hospital experiences Jorgensen announces that he is going back to Alaska to continue his search for the elusive paystreak.

George Hinton Henry, the Hot Springs and Tanana newspaper man, will have to answer the charge of libeling Mrs. Coffey, wife of the commissioner at Hot Springs. He was released by Commissioner Dehn, of Tanana, from the charges filed against him at Hot Spring some time ago, but District Judge F. E. Fuller has held that Commissioner Dehn acted without authority.

When the board of directors of the Newsboy Mining company of Fairbanks assembled it was announced that the property had shown a net profit for September of $2,652.66, which under the circumstances, was considered an extremely good showing. The total amount of the cleanup was $8,375.40, and the expenses amounted to $5,722.83, which left the net profit as stated.

Advices received recently from the Seward peninsula state that not nearly enough money has been received there to relieve the distress of those rendered destitute by the recent Bering storm which demolished the business section of Nome. All of the money received in the form of contributions has already been paid out to the laborers engaged in the removal of the debris, and there are many yet to be provided for.

Boost For Wrangell

Everybody is doing it so are you. Where in Hell is Wrangell anyhow we know but who else does? Talk about your sports, Wrangell has them, the grandest and most expert rod and gun sports that can be found in any part of Alaska. The rod and line sports tell of catches of trout and steel head that would stagger an ox. The gun sports, they can go the trout fishermen one better, they tell of murdering great flocks of ducks and geese; kill deer by the heard and run bear up the trees. We hear great stories around the fire places of the great and grand sportsmanship that was exhibited to bag their game. These sports are the real sports that a town needs to make it one of the liveliest places on earth. They are the making of any city. Now we know that Wrangell is full of men that do not wish to be outdone in fishing and hunting. Why not try this kind of energy on improving our city.

Hugh Halibut Caught In White Sea

A halibut which surpasses in size the one caught off Cape Ommaney, Alaska, by the schooner Idaho this summer, was brought into Aberdeen, Scotland, recently by a German trawler, which had been fishing in the White Sea. The fish was 8 feet long, 15 inches thick; measured nearly 8 feet in girth and weighed 448 pounds. It sold for 4 pounds, 14 shillings or about $22.90. This would bring the price to about 5 cents a pound. The halibut brought into Seattle by the Idaho was 7 feet 4 inches long, 10 inches thick and weighed 408 pounds. It brought $16.32 or 4 cents a pound, which was the market price on the date the halibut sold.

"Can any scholar give me a definition of an oyster?" asked the teacher.

The honors fell to Johnny who rose to remark, "An oyster is a fish built like a nut."

Cannery Tender Kake Lost While Crossing Bar

Advices received here by wire state the cannery tender Kake, belonging to the Kake Trading Co., was totally wrecked while crossing the Columbia river bar. The crew reached shore in safety but the tender will be a total loss, it is feared.

Details of the wreck were conveyed to Kake by the mail boat Fox. The Kake was bound for Astoria, where she was to have been placed in winter quarters, when the accident occurred.

foxes last year, only two of which were black. However, the pelts of the ranchbred fox are in many ways superior to the wild skins, as the animals can be closely watched, and scientifically fed. At the same time, the domestic culture of black and silver foxes is a tedious undertaking, and while the successful fox raiser is handsomely rewarded, many have cast their lot, but few have had the skill and patience to succeed.
